Customer Reviews

Anna Brett has worked in children's publishing for over seven years and has written and edited a huge variety of books. Her experience spans everything from curriculum-based reference to popular culture and books with digital extras, pop-ups and stickers. This means she's used to thinking upside down and back to front when it comes to fun activities for children!

My almost 6 year old grandson loved it. He could not read the words but that was OK. We didn't expect him to know the dinosaur names. We could match using the pictures. The board, cards and tokens are made of quite sturdy material. The small booklet about dinosaur facts is very interesting. It has about 3 facts about each. It is an interesting game for adults. Not just for kids.

This is a great game. We are dinosaur lovers. I would give it five stars but many unique and unfamiliar Dino names slowed the game down to help our kids read the names. Still very nice and educational!

My 5 year old received this game as a birthday gift from a friend. You Really have to love dinosaurs to appreciate it. Luckily my daughter is pretty much obsessed and she loved learning new things about the dinos. I would also add a few things like, "How can you tell it's a carnivore?" or, "How is this dino different from the last one?" to add a little more discussion. Great product!
