The Pimsleur Lessons are a re-master of the old 1998 Edition, but still somewhat effective. I had the first 8 lessons, and wanted to continue, instead of moving to another product. While not a perfect solution, you can learn from it. It can be irrelevant at times and overly repetitive, but it does build communication skills if you follow the instruction and keep with it. What was ordered was listed as new, and factory sealed, was definitely not sealed or new. There is scuff and wear throughout the package and the CDs. It does not affect function, and I am able to listen to all the CDs I have tried so far. If I had not ordered new I would call it good quality for used. I have a paper in the package that talks about being able to download reading booklets in pdf form but the only order number did not work. My sister recommended Pimsleur CDs to me & it's working really well for me. They start off with basics & build & it doesn't take long to feel comfortable with trying it out. The daily lessons are 30 minutes long, but I have been taking a longer time with it, listening to lessons over & over. Looking forward to continuing past these 30 lessons.

I studied spanish many many years ago high school. The beginning was very easy but about lesson 20, I found learning by just listening and repeating was not going so well. At the end of the 30 lessons, I am extremely limited in what I can understand an speak. And the spanish is very formal so not likely what you would encounter in a casual conversation,

I have had Spanish several times and felt that I just didn't have the aptitude for languages. The classes spent a lot of time on sentence structure when all I really wanted was a way to communicate when visiting a Spanish speaking country. I didn't need to memorize all of those words and verbs, etc. This is exactly what I needed and I'm so very pleased that I purchased it.

I used the Pimsleur approach to learn Italian before visiting Italy two years ago. It was very successful. While not fluent (that takes much more than 6 months!), I was able to rent a car, order food, check in and out of hotels, and even have a functional conversation with a B&B owner who spoke NO english. I was frequently complimented on my pronunciation. There is no better program to master the pronunciation. Recommendation: I found it helpful to write down words and phrases often. From a learning standpoint, this gives you the visual as well as the audio. Thanks Pimsleur. I am excited to learn Spanish, not just for my upcoming trip to Mexico, but for the purpose of making this my second language.

I'm half Puerto Rican, so it's kind of expected of me to speak Spanish. Unfortunately, even though my parents are fluent, I am not. I had Spanish classes throughout high school but comparing it to what I've heard at home and at family functions it just didn't sound the same. I understand it OK, but I never had the confidence to actually speak it in front of people who speak it well, family or not! I have not completed the whole course, I'm still in the beginning, so I will have to update this review once I'm done, but for now I wanted to mention one of the benefits I see so far. It starts with us speaking with a native Spanish speaker and we're learning how to approach her with a conversation. I love that! What better way to learn, then to speak and be taught how to pronounce the words without sounding like an American trying to speak Spanish? We're told not to take notes, because the way we'd look at it on paper (as an American) is not the way it should be pronounced. That's probably why my class in HS sounded like jokes when using text books and we laughed through each class. I found myself repeating the conversation in my head throughout the day, so I think this will work well to help me remember. I cannot wait to get to point "z". Rules: One lesson per day and you cannot move onto the next lesson until you've successfully answered at least 80% of your current lesson correctly. There's sort of a quiz at the end of each to see if you've remembered what you've learned. My only mistake was mixing up the "entiende" with the "entiendo". I just have to remember "e" for you, "o" for me, lol.

This method is amazing, especially when compared to all the lame non-effective cds/books/tapes I've tried over the years. I use it on my long commute in the car, speaking aloud, which trains me to reflexively spout out the correct phrases. Get it! It works! It's a slow, steady pace, but as the weeks accumulate, so does my knowledge of Spanish.

Great program. I have taken Spanish in school, but that was mostly reading and writing. I never learned to speak and understand Spanish. The Pimsleur program focuses on these skills.

It's challenging but effective. I kind of thought I could do this while driving, but I found that to be a little dangerous, at least for me. It takes too much concentration. Anyway, I am on Unit 11 and feeling like I am on my way to finally be able to speak Spanish.
