Boulder: Heart & Soul - People & Place

Synopsis

Amazing photographs reveal the splendor of Boulder's changing seasons and landscape, while the accompanying story and quotes celebrate this unique city and its natural surroundings. Through this imaginative book, you'll experience the wonders of the Flatiron mountains, Pearl Street Mall and the University of Colorado, along with brilliantly colored flowers, leaves, and skies. There's so much beauty in this one place - and in this one book.

"Nature with a human touch. Historic photos, pristine nature and the human element. The common thread is natural beauty." --Ray Tuomey, Director, Colorado Chautauqua Cultural Program

Photography is a means for Robert Castellino to express his deep love of nature and the state of Colorado. Robert is a master nature photographer, book publisher, story teller, speaker, founder of Whispering River, and a longtime resident of the Boulder area. His adventurous spirit often finds him deep in the Colorado wilderness before the sun is up - and out there still as the sun sets. Although Robert has been a professional photographer since 1988, he also considers himself a lifelong student, always working to perfect his craft. One of his many teachers is Sam Abell, noted National Geographic photographer. Robert is a teacher himself - through his lectures and workshops, and having taught at the Music and Arts Conservatory of Santa Barbara. He's also produced various multi-media shows performed by the Colorado Music Festival Orchestra and the Rocky Mountain Sierra Club. Robert's breathtaking photographs are a result of both swiftness and patience - quickly setting up shots, then waiting for the ideal conditions or moments in order to capture his beautiful and dramatic images (sometimes waiting for hours for the perfect moment!). Robert's goal is simple, yet profound: to share the beauty of the natural world and the wonder of life through photography and storytelling.
